A conjunctive adverb is one which introduces a subordinate sentence and modifies its verb; as, We will know the truth when he returns. The common disposition of conjunctive adverbs which makes them modify two verbs is faulty, and should be abandoned. In the sentence, I shall go when he arrives, go is modified by the sentence when he arrives as an adverb of time, while when is its introductory connective. Now, if when has any adverbial power it must modify arrives. This disposition of the conjunctive adverb is plainly more simple and logical than to make the subordinate sentence (he arrives) a modifier of that part of the conjunctive adverb (when) which modifies the preceding verb (shall go). 591. (1.) The words most frequently used as conjunctive adverbs are when, where, while, whence, whither, so as,...
